ongi etorri

Ongi etorri means welcome.
That's how we say it in our language: euskera.

Ongi etorri means that an entire city is waiting for you to discover it. For you to discover its unique character, which has changed over time without losing any of its personality and identity.

Because we like to show you who we are.
What we are like. To welcome you and join you on every street, in every museum and store, along every stroll. To show and describe every tradition, every activity, every festival and every dish. Every detail.

Because we are proud to remain as we are in a world where everything is becoming more and more alike. To welcome visitors who know how to appreciate a unique destination, while at the same time enriching us with their experience.

Because we love welcoming visitors like you who want to enjoy a special type of tourism.
Friendly. Sustainable. Personal.

Thanks for coming. Shall we join you?

In San Sebastian we love our city and we like having a good time. Here are a few suggestions on how to immerse yourself in the local customs while showing respect and taking care of our city.

do's and don'ts for the responsible tourist

LIKE A TRUE NATIVE OF SAN SEBASTIAN

BASQUE CULTURE. OUR LANGUAGE, BASQUE, THE ESSENCE OF THE CITY

Try greeting people with "kaixo" and "agur". You will find other simple handy terms in our dictionary.

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR STAY AND GET TO KNOW US PROPERLY

In Donostia/San Sebastian, we have really good tourist agents who will help you to discover the secrets of the city and its people. Authentic places and tours, away from the more popular tourist attractions...

HELP SMALL BUSINESSES AND LOCAL DEVELOPMENT

Explore the streets of the city and buy in traditional stores, like a local.

GET AROUND ON PUBLIC TRANSPORT

Whenever possible, use public transport. We recommend using the Tourist Card for this.

_ 104

You can also hire a bicycle and travel around the city on two wheels.

_ 71

RESPECT THE SLEEP OF LOCAL RESIDENTS...

If you go out to bars at night, remember that there are people sleeping right above where you are having fun. If you respect their sleep, they will be grateful.

FOR MORE SUSTAINABLE TOURISM

If the planet is everyone's home, then the city is our bedroom, the place where care and respect need to begin. Let's enjoy San Sebastian today, but let's also preserve its authenticity so that we can continue to enjoy it tomorrow.

10 must-see sights

La Concha: the queen of all beaches

It is an unrivalled setting, the jewel in the crown of San Sebastian. The Pearl of the Cantabrian Sea. Relax in La Perla Thalassotherapy Centre - a legacy from the Belle Époque - and then go for a swim (even if it's winter!) at the beach. _ 18

the real san sebastian? in the 'old town', of course

The Old Town is the city's most authentic district, the place where a gothic church, baroque basilica, a square that used to be a bullring (hence the numbered balconies), narrow alleys bursting with atmosphere and the "baserritarras" (farmers), sell the best vegetables in the city, are all concentrated within just a few square metres. _ 12

belle époque architecture

At the start of the 19th century, San Sebastian became one of the most exciting cities in Europe, and its Romantic Area with a pronounced Parisian feel, is proof of this. Enjoy the arcades facing Buen Pastor Cathedral, Gipuzkoa Square and the famous Hotel Maria Cristina. _ 62

pintxos (tapas)

There are as many ways to enjoy these miniature gastronomic delights as there are districts in the city. The Old Town is the epicentre and the place that brings together old-school bars with some of the most modern ones you will find.

Gros has a younger, more local feel, while in the Centre and Antiguo district, the atmosphere is more relaxed and laid back. And if you still want more, sign up for some cooking classes, where you will become a genuine San Sebastian chef. _ 38 off to the port!

San Sebastian's port has provided refuge for generations of whale hunters and fishermen who have battled against countless storms. All of those stories are brought together in the Naval Museum and in the Aquarium, which are both located in the very port. Go there to immerse yourself in San Sebastian's intense seafaring history. _ 14

An hour's walk by the sea

Walk along the six kilometres of the seafront promenade that connects Sagues with the Peine del Viento (Wind Comb), along the Paseo Nuevo (which borders Mount Urgull) and the Paseo de La Concha. A peaceful route dotted with some of the best works by Basque sculptors, including Chillida, Oteiza, Basterretxea and Dora Salazar. And if you want to delve deeper into the atmosphere of sea and art, take a boat from the port and visit "Hondalea", the island's lighthouse. Happy travelling!

a sea for every sport

3 beaches, 3 styles. The surfers go to Zurriola, you go to La Concha for canoeing or stand up paddle boarding and the swimmers go to Ondarreta Beach, from which it is easiest to get to Santa Clara Island. You can also get there by boat or relax in the fine sand. _ 68

made in San Sebastian

The best way to remember the city is to take a piece of it with you, either in the form of a bottle of txakoli wine, a pantxineta custard slice or Idiazabal cheese. Or perhaps an exclusive gift from one of the city's boutiques, a surf board 'made in San Sebastian', or a piece of local art....the list is endless! _ 85

the lookout of San Sebastian

Igeldo, Urgull and Ulia are San Sebastian's three mountains and they are the perfect size for making your way to the top. They will all reward you with the finest panoramic views for your photos and they each have an added surprise. Igeldo? A funicular and an age-old amusement park. Urgull? A romantic cemetery. Ulia? Cliffs overlooking the sea. _ 73

the sea brought the first fishermen to San Sebastian, who were seeking refuge on Mount Urgull. It later attracted the interest of King Sancho of Navarre, who was its founder, and of all of the armies who have passed through here in the history of war. The sea also brought with it a queen with skin problems and the subsequent fashion of summering. And the sea also brought our current cultural, economic and tourist potential

King Sancho the Wise of Navarre's desire to have a route out to sea from his kingdom led to him granting San Sebastian a charter in 1180, and this event can be considered the moment when the town was officially founded. This then saw maritime trade being combined with traditional whaling and cod fishing.

Its proximity to France and its position on the Road to Santiago not only drove the development of this small coastal town, they also made it a strategic location during times of war. It therefore became a fortified town in the 12th century. Over the centuries it was subjected to numerous sieges, but the people of San Sebastian managed to defend it from their enemies until 1719, when the town surrendered for the first time and fell into the hands of France for two years. In 1794 the town succumbed again when besieged by the French, this time until 1813, when San Sebastian was liberated by Anglo-Portuguese soldiers, who burnt down and looted the town. Only a few houses were left standing, forcing the people of San Sebastian to rebuild it, almost from scratch, creating the Old Town that we know today.

Happier times were to follow when Queen Isabel II, whose doctors had recommended that she bathed in the sea to alleviate her skin problems, made summering in San Sebastian fashionable. This was in 1845 and, from then everything brought by the sea

on, her presence attracted the court and numerous aristocrats during the summer months. The town was becoming famous and needed to grow and expand. The walls were demolished in 1864, and the urban development that took place gave rise to the Cortázar expansion district, which is the current city centre.

At the start of the 20th century, San Sebastian experienced its "Belle Époque", becoming the preferred tourist destination of the European upper classes. Queen María Cristina made the Miramar Palace the summer residence of her court, and the luxury hotels, casinos and theatres flourished.

During the 1st World War, moneyed Europeans took refuge from the conflict here. Much of the French influence that is visible on the streets of the city is due to these visitors.

The heavy industrialisation in the years following the Civil War in 1936 resulted in a dark period during which certain poorly-judged urban development took place.

But in the second half of the 20th century, San Sebastian consolidated its economic, cultural and tourist potential, pushing forward new projects while at the same time preserving its natural and historical heritage, becoming, in the process, the stylish combination of tradition and modernity that we know today.

SIX DISTRICTS
THAT MAKE A CITY

The Old Town

Preserving the essence of San Sebastian. When San Sebastian was still but an island connected to the mainland by a narrow strip of land, there was a fisherman's quarter that was sheltered by Mount Urgull. The Old Town is the direct descendent of that district, the beating heart of the city. Its streets are home to the city's oldest buildings, with their countless bars, restaurants and gastronomic societies.

tradition and gastronomy

The essences of San Sebastian

The tour starts at La Bretxa Market (1) which takes its name (meaning 'breach') from the place where the English and Portuguese troops broke through the city wall in the siege of 1813, when the French army was stationed in the city. Its traditional street market is home to stalls with some of the most highly-rated products in San Sebastian and some of the most famous chefs visit it almost every day.

Although there are "pintxo" bars and restaurants tucked away in practically every street in the Old Town, Fermín Calbetón (2) undoubtedly takes first prize, because of the number and variety of establishments there. A stroll along it at lunchtime or in the evening perfectly illustrates the passion for 'txikiteo' – hopping from bar to bar, pintxo to pintxo, glass of wine to glass of wine- that has always been a big part of San Sebastian.

A few metres from that street is Constitución Square (3). This is the heart, the very epicentre around which the Old Town's network of streets dances. It is an arcaded square, overlooked by the city's old town hall, whose balconies still retain the numbering of the old stands from the bullring that it once was.

A bustling atmosphere, with people and tapas is also found on Mayor Street

(4). At the end of this street, overlooked by Mount Urgull, is the Basilica of Santa María (5), a baroque church erected in the 18th century with the money of the Royal Guipuzkoan Company of Caracas.

The building impresses with its size and for being the home of a fascinating Diocesan museum with works by El Greco, Jorge Oteiza and Chillida.

If we turn right we enter 31 de agosto street (6), a road which, besides its gastronomic fame, has great significance for the people of San Sebastian: the properties on the even-numbered side of the street were the only ones to survive the devastating fire caused during the siege of 1813. Halfway down the street there is an open space that is used as a pelota court, playground and a stage for rural sports competitions and concerts: Trinidad Square (7). 'La Trini' is the most popular spot during the Jazzaldia jazz festival, an outdoor auditorium with perfect acoustics, which has seen some of the 20th century's biggest names in blues, soul and jazz, e.g. B.B. King, James Brown and Ella Fitzgerald.

At the other end of 31 de Agosto Street stands San Vicente Church (8), the city's oldest building. It was built at the beginning of the 16th century, in the late Gothic style, and inside its shaded and peaceful interior, it features a spectacular altarpiece with scenes from the Passion of Christ.

The Old Town is also the gateway to city landmarks such as the Island of Santa Clara and its lighthouse, where the spectacular sculpture 'Hondalea' by Cristina Iglesias was installed in 2021.

On the other side of the bustling Zuloaga Square that opens out to the north of the church is the San Telmo Museum (9), of Basque Society and Citizenship. An exhibition space devoted to Basque history, which is housed in a former Dominican convent that was erected in the 16th century and extended in 2011 with a modern building.

The huge wooded area that overlooks 'lo Viejo' has a name. For centuries, Mount Urgull (10), was owned by the army, which fortified its slopes and summit to defend the city. Some of those walls still remain today, as a reminder of the city's military and defensive past. There are numerous tracks and roads: one route to explore starts at the stairway that is besides San Telmo. From here you go up to the romantic English Cemetery. Soon after you will reach the summit, where you will find the Mota Castle and the Sagrado Corazón (Sacred Heart) monument; here you can explore the History House (a museum where the city's 800-years history is recounted), admire the views from the only place in the city where you can see all three beaches, and go down to the port along the Paseo de los Curas (Priest's Promenade).

The Old Town does not have a beach but it does have a route out to sea: the Port (11), which you get to from the Old Town via one of the gates of the ancient city wall. San Sebastian's dock has a life of its own, with its traditional seafood restaurants, its own snack (kiskillas and karrakelas - prawns and winkles) to nibble as you stroll and the traditional houses of the families of former fishermen. It ends at the Naval Museum (12), which preserves the seafaring history of San Sebastian and the Aquarium (13), with a huge oceanarium through which a tunnel passes with a 360° view.

In the summer season, motorboats leave the port for Santa Clara Island (14), a favourite haven of the people of San Sebastian. This islet, which for years has only been inhabited by the lighthouse keeper, is away from the hustle and bustle of the city: there are no vehicles and there is only a tiny beach (one of the few on the Cantabrian Sea to face the south), footpaths, stairways, picnic benches, quiet spots and excellent views of the sea and the San Sebastian skyline. And a tip if you want to swim there: the shortest route is from Ondarreta Beach: 400 m.

At the end of the port, the Paseo Nuevo (15), starts, the wildest and most beautiful in the mountain Urgull became the property of the city 100 years ago and it was developed just enough for the park to retain the appearance of a barely-tamed city forest.

the city. Along its entire length it skirts around Mount Urgull, and it is where you can watch the spectacle of giant waves on stormy days. There, you will find the Construcción Vacía (16). (Empty Construction), the large sculpture by Jorge Oteiza, defiantly facing the sea.

At sunset, the beautiful, Rationalist-style building of the Real Club Náutico (17). (Royal Yacht Club - 1929) draws out the last rays of sunlight of the day. The platform that starts next to it and enters the sea is a favourite spot among locals to see out the day.

A Baroque basilica and a Gothic church, each more beautiful than the next, an unparalleled culinary exhibition and a fundamental part of the city's history are waiting for you on Calle 31 de Agosto.

2 centre and romantic area

San Sebastian's romantic area emerged in the mid-19th century, along the urban development that was planned after the demolition of the wall that had protected the town. This is where the charm of the Belle Époque is revealed in casinos, theatres and hotels, where the main shopping streets are concentrated and the city's unmistakable Parisian feel is most evident.

architecture, Belle Époque and shopping gambling houses that were dotted along the French and Italian Riviera.

Opposite the city hall, the Alderdi Eder Gardens (3): a green space that was meticulously planned at the end of the 19th century, with a carousel that enrapt children and ever-present tamarisks or tamarind trees (as they are commonly known), a tree that is present in all of San Sebastian's marine areas.

A few blocks away is the first city park to be built in San Sebastian, Gipuzkoa Square (4), a beautiful, French-style garden from the 19th century. The square is overlooked by the Provincial Council building, and at the top of its façade you can see the busts of some of the most celebrated Basque explorers. This part of the city is a neatly arranged grid of houses in the European new urbanist style, but with touches of San Sebastian: the characteristic yellowish stone with which these buildings were constructed came from the sandstone quarries that operated on mounts Igeldo and Ulia.

In the area closest to the river, two of San Sebastian's landmarks from the Belle Époque immediately stand out: the Victoria Eugenia Theatre and Hotel María despite being modest in nature, some of San Sebastian's most beautiful and characteristic urban landscapes have been built on the final stretch of the river Urumea.

Cristina (5), an inseparable duo, both initiatives of a city with the (successful) ambition of attracting European tourists during the interwar period. Hundreds of celebrities have passed through the doors of these two buildings, from Mata Hari and Bruce Springsteen to stars like Elizabeth Taylor, Bette Davis, Woody Allen, Richard Gere and Brad Pitt, invited to Zinemaldia, the city's International Film Festival.

The River Urumea runs alongside them and, at its mouth, stands the Zurriola Bridge, the bridge that is most exposed to the fury of the sea, recognisable by its large art deco-style lampposts. The second bridge, with a more conventional style, Santa Catalina, is the oldest in the city. The third, half a kilometre upriver, is the María Cristina Bridge (6), the most famous thanks to its fancy streetlights, inspired by the Alexander III Bridge in Paris.

This bridge connects directly to Bilbao Square (7), which has a circular design and a beautiful fountain at its centre and was built at the start of the 20th century. The square is a gateway to the romantic area and to the main shopping streets, such as Hondarribia and Loiola. The latter of these, which is fully pedestrianised, is where you will find the Buen Pastor Cathedral (8), a neo-gothic building that was inaugurated in 1897, a tribute to the large European medieval cathedrals.

Its 75-metre steeple is still the highest building in San Sebastian.

The romantic area is also known for its pleasant streets and pedestrianised squares, with shopping areas and coffee terraces. Next to the bustling Reyes Católicos Street, with views of the back of the cathedral, stands the stately building of the Koldo Mitxelena Cultural Centre (9), where, as well as the centre's pedestrianised streets are perfect for enjoying its attractive and varied range of shops.

having a library, numerous events and interesting contemporary exhibitions are held. It is worth taking a look at its programme of events.

On the way to La Concha Beach, we will come across another of the food markets that dates back over one hundred years, San Martín (10), now rehoused in a modern building. Inside there are stalls where they sell fresh products from local market gardens, and there are also butchers and fishmongers.

We continue along Easo Street until we reach the historic Hotel Londres, opposite the city's biggest landmark: LA CONCHA (11) and its iconic railings, designed by the then municipal architect, Juan Rafael Alday, in 1916. From these railings we gaze upon the beach of all beaches. In 1845, Queen Isabel II came to La Concha after her doctors recommended that she bathe in the sea to alleviate her skin problems. After that, with the new fashion of going to the beach, high society aristocrats followed behind her, leading to San Sebastian becoming stylish and chic. And then came the rest: the nickname of the Pearl of the Cantabrian Sea, the tourists and the acclaim for being one of the most beautiful city beaches in the world. Today thousands upon thousands of visitors continue to lean on the famous railings on its promenade and take an iconic photo of the city, or they go down to the sand and walk barefoot along its more than 1,300 metres, or they take a dip in its hypnotic waters.

There is a route with a distance of nearly two kilometres between the City Hall and the Antigua tunnel, which you can walk down, run along (people have been passionate about running here for decades) or ride down on a bicycle, thanks to the convenient bicycle lane. Soon we reach the famous 'clocks' and then the renovated building of La Perla Talaso-Sport Centre (12), opened in 1912 and still retaining the attractive style of the Belle Époque.

There are no buildings along the final stretch of La Concha's promenade. Very near to the Miramar palace and the Antigua district, on a balcony with splendid views of the bay and Santa Clara Island, is the sculpture 'Homenaje a Fleming (13)' (Homage to Fleming) by the local artist Eduardo Chillida.

a style of city Perhaps there is nowhere that better illustrates the "San Sebastian style" which embodies the character of the city than the Centre and the Romantic Area : a café in Gipuzkoa Square, the carousel in Alderdi Eder, the view of the Hotel María Cristina and Victoria Eugenia Theatre behind the Zurriola Bridge, or the modernist touches of the small bookshops and balconies of the Centre; they come together to define a city that has been able to modernise the hedonistic style inherited from the holidaying aristocrats of the 19th century and the Belle Époque.

3 Gros and Egia

Gros starts on the other side of the River Urumea and, together with the neighbouring Egia district, is one of the city's most vibrant areas. A forward-looking area that overlooks the Cantabrian Sea through Zurriola Beach, where we will find surfers on the street, board in hand, bars with live music, a mountain and a park with numerous footpaths, innovative architecture and, a few streets away, a modern cultural centre where countless events are programmed.

here (concerts, classical music, exhibitions, etc.) which are worth checking out. One last thing: the esplanade that opens out to the north of both buildings is where they hold the official photocall for the movie stars who visit the city in September.

Zurriola beach is a prelude to everything that's going on behind it, in the Gros and Egia districts.

For decades, the Gros district was known for its workshops, factories, a bullring (El Chofre, demolished in 1973) and the fierce waves on its coastline. However, Gros is now one of the youngest, most dynamic and most invigorating areas in the city, with modern shops and bustling streets to go out for "pintxos" and a few drinks (locally known as "poteo"). With the improvement and expansion of the beach twenty years ago, and the subsequent construction of the Kursaal Congress Centre and Auditorium, the area started to undergo a metamorphosis that has made it what it is today.

The city's first major contemporary building was also built in Gros: The Kursaal (1) Palace, the work of Rafael Moneo, consists of two large buildings that mimic two stranded rocks facing the sea. These 'cubes' are the main headquarters of the Zinemaldia, the San Sebastian International Film Festival and an exciting programme of events is held

One of the drivers of this change is Zurriola Beach (2) and the promenade that runs alongside it, frequented by surfers on days when the sea promises good waves. Unlike the quiet and elegant character of the other beaches in San Sebastian, Zurriola reflects the more versatile and bohemian nature of the district and is favoured among young people. It is known for its surfing atmosphere, with constant, powerful waves allowing you to go surfing at both high and low tide. It is also perfect for surfing beginners, thanks to the numerous schools offering their services. In July, Zurriola hosts one of the most popular stages of the Jazz Festival. Only there can you dance with sand between your toes as the night falls. And it also has a specific area for nudists.

At the end of the promenade, on the eastern edge of the city, is Sagüés (3), one of the best spots in the city for watching the sun set over the sea. For decades, its famous, popular 'wall' has been a meeting place for surfers, groups of friends and couples, who come here to view the sea conditions, chat or simply sit down and chill. The large white sculpture near to the end of the promenade is La Paloma de la Paz (4) (the Dove of Peace) by Nestor Basterretxea, a work that symbolises the power of words and dialogue over violence. This work concludes the Basque sculptural route, which also includes Chillida's Peine del Viento (Wind Comb, in Antiguo) and Oteiza's Construcción Vacía (Empty Construction, on the Paseo Nuevo).

The mountain that looms over the city from the east is Ulía (5). At its summit there were once lookout points where people scanned the sea in search of whales. At the start of the 20th century, one of Donostia/San Sebastian's first amusement parks was built there, which you would travel to on a funicular, with restaurants and shooting facilities. Ulía is now one of the green lungs of Donostia/San Sebastian, a place to get away from the hustle and bustle of the city. With just a 20-minute climb we can reach its forests and cliffs, and admire a spectacular panoramic view of the city. It is through Mount Ulía where pilgrims come walking towards Santiago. Numerous the Tabakalera also has a café, several shops that provide original fashion, art and design products and a terrace with exceptional panoramic views of the River Urumea and the city's romantic area.

well-marked footpaths cross the mountain; perfect for going on a morning excursion. The most popular path takes you to the Faro de la Plata (Silver Whitehouse), in the neighbouring town of Pasaia, without ever losing sight of the sea.

Gros also has numerous establishments where they offer the best pintxos (tapas) in Donostia/San Sebastian. The pedestrianised Peña y Goñi and Zabaleta streets are where many of these trendy 'pintxeros' (tapas bars) are found.

The development of the Gros that we now know started in the 1920s. Many of the buildings in the district reflect the architectural vanguards of the period, notably Rationalism. Another, more interesting example of the expressionist branch of this new trend is the Equitativa (7) building. Its curved façade welcomes everyone who enters Gros over the Santa Catalina Bridge. Another Rationalist work is the Casa de los Solteros (6) (House for Unmarried Men, where the Zurriola promenade meets Bermingham Street), so called because it was one of the city's first buildings with small flats; it also features an entrance hall with a pronounced art deco style.

To the south of Gros is Egia. If we cross Miracruz Street (one of Gros's main thoroughfares), we come to Duque de Mandas Street, which takes us into San Sebastian's new trendy neighbourhood. Egia is the latest area to join the places you must visit in the city, largely thanks to the Tabakalera (8), the International Contemporary Culture Centre. Opened in 2015, it is the city's old tobacco factory that was converted into a multipurpose venue with a highly extensive programme that covers several artistic disciplines.

Egia has also become the new focus of the city's music offerings. In addition to the concerts scheduled in the Tabakalera, there are bars in the area with live music and shows.

Cristina Enea Park (9) is Egia's 'green' resident. It is the largest and most wooded urban park in the city, a gift made to San Sebastian by the Duke of Mandas (which is why it bears his wife's name) on the condition that its original appearance was preserved. And it has been: the park still retains the charm of yesteryear, with a full network of footpaths. And in the upper area, next to the house, you can see still the peacocks that freely roam the site.

these are the young, artistic and creative areas, which never stop, with modern shops and pintxo bars that are always looking for a new twist.

don't Stop! We go to Gros, crossing the Zurriola Bridge, we stroll around the halls of the Tabakalera, we enjoy Cristina Enea Park and we end the day surfing the waves at Zurriola Beach. Are you game?

4 Antiguo and Igeldo

Antiguo is where the city originally emerged, almost ten centuries ago, although it is slightly outside the centre of it. It has its own beach, a mountain with a retro amusement park, an English-style royal mansion and a bustling network of shops, hotels and dining establishments. It's time to go through the tunnel that leads to Antiguo...

palaces and art on the seafront

Antiguo is one of the city's most special neighbourhoods. It was here where the first population centre was established, around a monastery devoted to the French saint, Sebastian. The religious complex, of which nothing remains now, was where the Miramar Palace now stands. For centuries, Antiguo was a farming area located outside the city walls, almost two kilometres from the Old Town, so it developed its own character with its own customs. For many locals, going through the Antiguo tunnel is like visiting a neighbouring village that moves at its own pace and has a wide and appealing range of activities to do with all of the family.

There are several ways of getting to Antiguo from the city centre, always with a pleasant view of the bay on our right: one is along La Concha's promenade, going through the Tunnel (1) that is decorated with maritime motifs and one of the legacies of being the European Capital of Culture in 2016. Another is along Miraconcha Promenade, which rises up alongside the other promenade and ends at the very door of the Miramar Palace. And, of course, another route is along La Concha Beach itself; if the tide is low we will get to Ondarreta Beach by walking along the walkway from the Pico del Loro (2).

If the sea is on our right, to the left we will never lose sight of the stately, British-style Miramar Palace (3). This peculiar building from the end of the 19th century evokes the style of an English country mansion and from 1893 it was the summer residence of Queen María Cristina, Alfonso XIII and Juan Carlos de Borbón. The best thing about this complex are its beautifully maintained gardens, with views of the bay, perfect for lying down, reading or chatting. To the rear there is an inviting miniature forest and if we leave the park via Matia Street (4), the main road in the district with its friendly bars and countless traditional stores, we will find Antiguo's San Sebastián Church.

In the nearby Sert Square (5), the palm trees and fountains form a relaxing oasis amid the hustle and bustle of the neighbourhood. Further along, is the start of the residential district of Benta Berri, where the headquarters of the Musikene (6) stand, the Basque Country's Higher School of Music.

The building, the latest addition to San Sebastian's contemporary architecture, stands out for its geometric volumes and golden panels. Can you guess what musical instrument it's copying? (*)

If we head back towards the beach, we will come to Zubimusu Park (7), a charming natural space that is hidden away, which also serves as a small urban kitchen garden. It has a pond and a doll which, dressed in the traditional garb of a "dantzari" (traditional Basque dancer), performs a colourful dance on the hour. Children love it.

To the north of Matia Street are the Ondarreta Villas (8), a quiet network of streets with hardly any traffic, where there are cosy residential and holiday villas from the 20th century. They come in all kinds of styles: Basque, Rationalist, adorned with Portuguese tiles or with a neoclassical look.

The villas are the perfect prelude before reaching the gardens (where there is a statue in honour of Queen María Cristina) and Ondarreta Beach (9).

This is the preferred beach for families and groups: it is large, relaxed, with calm waters, with only a few, very small waves. In the summer it has beach bars, playgrounds and a tent rental service so that you can set up a family "camp". There are fun activities for kids of all ages on this sandy beach, from catching the waves that crash against the wall to looking for crabs on the rocks when the tide is low. Ondarreta is also the point of departure for swimming the half-kilometre crossing to Santa Clara Island. The journey is a real adventure which many parents do together with their kids.

There are several platforms at the halfway point (the famous 'gabarrones') with trampolines and slides, where you can have a rest.

Where the Ondarreta and urban San Sebastian meet ends, at the face of Mount Igeldo, is the Peine del Viento (10) (Wind Comb), the city's main sculptural landmark. This space is the joint work of the local sculptor Eduardo Chillida –the steel 'combs' that look like they are swimming away from the rocks are by him– and the architect Luis Peña Ganchequi, who was responsible for the development of the area. This place has taken on an almost magical significance for the people of San Sebastian, come rain or come shine, which is why countless people make their way there every day to get in shape and, while they are at it, gaze at the horizon. Along with the Paseo Nuevo, the Peine del Viento is one of the best places to take part in a traditional pastime among the locals: watching the waves on days with rough seas. Just wear suitable clothes, take a sturdy umbrella and take basic precautions so that you can enjoy the impressive spectacle of a storm.

The mountain that seems to be swooping down on the → Eduardo Chillida's "Peine del Viento" combines landscape, art, the sea, iron and stone, making this spot a stunning meeting place for locals and visitors.

'Peine' and the sea is Igeldo (11), the highest of all of the hills around the bay. At the start of the 20th century an Amusement Park (13) was built at its summit, and this still retains much of its original character today. This is partly thanks to the wooden Funicular (12) that takes you to the top, overcoming an impossible slope, the old tower that used to serve as a lighthouse and lookout point for whales and some vintage-style rides, like the Rio Misterioso (Mysterious River) and Montaña Suiza (Rollercoaster).

family, let's go to Antiguo! When you go through the Antiguo tunnel you can relax, you're in the most 'village-like' neighbourhood in San Sebastian. The views of the bay from the gardens of the Miramar Palace, a quiet beach day in Ondarreta and, to top it all off, the Igeldo Amusement Park are just some of the activities that will delight the whole family.

5 Amara and Riberas

It is time to go back to the River Urumea, through the city's most modern neighbourhoods, between parks and bars where they serve pintxos (tapas) and 'hamaketakos' (a local form of brunch). On the avenue that overlooks the river there are several sporting temples, some with façades more reminiscent of Paris than San Sebastian and feats of modern architecture.

sporty neighbourhoods on the Urumea river

The long boulevards alongside the Urumea are perfect for doing sport

A hundred years ago, when San Sebastian was already a top European summer destination, the Amara Berri district (Berri = new) did not even exist. Its land belonged to the marshes of the River Urumea, which had barely been channelled. There was Amara Zaharra (Zaharra = Old), which still exists now, a popular neighbourhood that emerged around Easo Square (1), a perfect starting point for exploring the surroundings of the romantic area, where the area's liveliest pintxo bars are found. At the opposite end to the bandstand stands the Euskotren station, which connects San Sebastian/Donostia to the French border and Bilbao, travelling along the entire coast.

Áraba Park (2) is a leafy area where, in one of its corners, Queen Maria Cristina is remembered. Amara is arranged around three large avenues: Sancho El Sabio (3), Madrid (4), and Carlos I (5); and streets such as Isabel II (6) and Baleneros (7) and the Squares to the left of Carlos I (8), which have a wide culinary selection.

The Anoeta Stadium (9) stands at the southern end of Amara and it is the stadium where Real Sociedad, the local First Division football team, plays its matches. The building houses a museum devoted to the history of this venerable club. There is a large concentration of sporting facilities around Anoeta, e.g. swimming pools, sports centres, a pelota court, a skate park, a cycle track, the Illumbe bullring, a multipurpose facility where the Gipuzkoa basketball team also plays its First Division games. They are all open, both for doing sport and watching a match of any of the sports played there. Want to take a close look at Basque pelota? Take a look at the season's schedule at the Atano III.

In the Riberas (10) district, which is also next to the river, stands the modern lesu Church (11) and the Memorial Garden, which remembers all of the victims of violence, wars and terrorism. The church is the work of Rafael Moneo and its visual simplicity and minimalism are striking.

if your visit to Donostia/San Sebastian coincides with a match day, it will be a great chance to discover the atmosphere created by the txurirdin fans (meaning blue and white, referring to the team's colours).

It is best to return to the city centre along the Avenue alongside the Urumea (12), first along Bizkaia promenade, and then along Gernikako Arbola promenade, where you can appreciate the buildings on Prim Street, which overlooks the River Urumea. This route has a pronounced Parisian feel, with no shortage of modernist tiles and landscaped courtyards. It is also the perfect route if you like to go running.

Look at the different architectural styles of the six bridges until you reach the sea. A real journey through time!

6 Aiete and Miramon

The Aiete and Miramon parks have very little in common besides their location: they are both on a hill at the southern end of the city. They are located in the city's upper districts, in an area that was once full of farmsteads and cider houses. As well as forests and gardens, they hold several surprises, like a summer palace from the 19th century with a history of colourful guests, some neo-gothic fortified towers, a Roman-style amphitheatre and the Science Museum.

a green lung among science and innovation

San Sebastian is a city that is surrounded by gentle hills and the Aiete district is located on one of them: a quiet residential area, the highest part of which is dominated by the Aiete Palace and Park (1). Everything revolves around this neoclassical building whose construction was commissioned in 1878 by the Duke and Duchess of Bailén. It was the summer residence of the Spanish monarchs, from Isabel II to Alfonso XIII, and also the summer residence of the dictator Franco from 1941 to 1975, with the cabinet meetings held within its walls in the summertime. The building is surrounded by a large, French-style monumental garden with a pond, swans and ducks, a cave and a waterfall made from artificial rock and, on the north side, a rainforest with numerous ancient trees and even giant sequoia trees.

If we follow the old road towards Hernani, we will come to another large San Sebastian park, Miramon. This is a wilder area that has been adapted for walkers. The restored Katxola (2) farmhouse is on its grounds and here they produce cider using traditional methods from centuries gone by, with the ingredients being provided by the two ancient apple trees found in the park. Other interesting sights include the Amphitheatre (3), a curious Roman-style stage area where they hold outdoor events; and the Arbide Towers (4), two neo-gothic buildings erected in the city centre in 1904 (next to the River Urumea) and transferred, stone by stone, to their current location in 1979, to prevent them from disappearing. Between them, countless footpaths trail off through the Miramon Forest (5), with numerous information panels on the fauna and flora found there, which even suggest circuits for doing Nordic walking.

In the developed area near to the park, there is the Eureka Science Museum (6). It has over 170 interactive modules encouraging participation and experimentation and there is also a room with 20 species of live animals. Next to the museum, the 'Gipuzkoa in Miniature' outdoor exhibition will catch your eye, with over thirty faithful small-scale reproductions of some of the region's most iconic historical buildings.

The most modern building in the Miramon Technology Park is the Basque Culinary Centre (7), the second gastronomic university in Europe and a state-of-the-art centre where skilled professionals are trained, research is performed on the culinary arts and culinary courses are taught in several languages. Try this game: identify the common thing in every kitchen that it resembles (*).

A person in a black wetsuit is walking away from the camera on a sandy beach, carrying a surfboard under their arm. The beach is covered in footprints. In the background, there are buildings and a hill with a church spire under a sunset sky with orange and yellow clouds. The ocean waves are visible on the right side of the frame.

In San Sebastian, the cooking expresses what we're perhaps unable to express with words. Every pintxo (tapa) and every dish contains the language through which we want to convey unique emotions that you won't be able to forget. There's a reason why it's been chosen as the world's Best Culinary Destination for 2018.

EXCITEMENT GUARANTEED

Donostia in a league of its own

You can eat a stew or some pintxos, seated or on your feet, in a fine restaurant or in the most popular of taverns. It doesn't make a difference. You eat well in this city. However you do it.

The importance given to food in this city, in all of its forms, has made it a universal icon of gastronomy, and rightly so. You only have to wander around San Sebastian's Old Town to be struck by the omnipresence of the catering establishments in the city.

There is such a varied, extensive and high-quality selection that you could visit the city dozens of times without going to the same restaurant and still leave with the same unbeatable impression. When it comes to food, San Sebastian stands apart.

Because there is much more to choose from here than just the incredible variety of pintxos in the hundreds of bars that dot the city. There are gastronomic societies, there are cider houses, markets and gourmet shops with top-quality local produce; there are seafood restaurants, culinary universities and signature restaurants; and there is, above all, one of the world's highest concentrations of Michelin stars. Yes, San Sebastian is the ultimate expression of the pleasure of food. It is the home of creativity, beauty and magic – all those vibrant emotions that good cuisine serves up.

19 Michelin stars

Michelin stars everywhere

→ they place a dish on the table (for example, this "Lubina en su plenitud (Sea bass in its plenitude) from Rte. Arzak) as if it were a gift to be opened. It is an innovative, surprising, magical and, of course, very tasty creation. You are not sure what it is, but you will never forget it.

Take a compass and place it over a map of San Sebastian. Stick the tip of the compass in the City Hall and draw a radius of 25 kilometres. Do you know how many Michelin stars are there inside that little circle you've drawn, which you could cover in about ten minutes in a car? There are 19. Also, of the eleven restaurants with three Michelin stars that there are in the country, three of them are in San Sebastian. Arzak, Akelarre and Martín Berasategui. And as many as five other restaurants also have this distinction: Mugaritz and Amelia, with two, and Kokotxa, Mirador de Ulia and eMe Be Garrote, with one. The Alameda restaurant is in Hondarribia, Zuberoa is in Oiartzun and Elkano is in Getaria, a little further, with a Michelin star each of them. This is a remarkable achievement. Indeed, apart from Kyoto in Japan, there's nowhere else in the world with a higher concentration per square metre. In San Sebastian we've turned cooking into a laboratory of ideas and creative workshop that is famous the world over. We have turned gastronomy into form of art, of engineering, a symbol of our identity. But enough talking. Let's eat.

If the à la carte and set menus are the cologne of San Sebastian's restaurants, pintxos are the perfume. The essence. The heart of our cooking. Originally the pintxo (tapa) was a slice of bread onto which a portion of food was placed, held together by a cocktail stick. Nowadays, there are simple but exceptional pintxos, like the traditional potato omelette, or the amazing Gilda, a local creation that is a spicy appetiser with chili pepper, anchovy and olive, created in honour of Rita Hayworth. And, naturally, there are more sophisticated pintxos, examples of "miniature" haute cuisine, flavours created and concentrated into small, tasty morsels.

Going out for pintxos is a social event, and a way of getting to know our culture, a spectacle that combines laughter, conversation, movement and fun.

TIP FOR BEGINNERS

Every bar has its star pintxo. If you don't know what it is, order a drink and look at what the regulars are eating. Then order the same thing
— 40-41

- If it's a cold pintxo it's normally available on the bar, and you can help yourself to it.
- If it's a hot pintxo, you order it from the waiter.
- When you go out for pintxos, you normally have one round (pintxo and drink) in each bar, and then move on to the next bar.
- You normally pay at the end.
- Usually groups of friends take turns to pay for rounds, or they set up a "kitty" before they start (none of this paying for your own order in each bar).

going out for pintxos

local activity

You can enjoy this food in bars in the Old Town, the Centre, Gros and other areas of San Sebastian. We recommend visiting 4 or 5 bars and trying 1 or 2 pintxos and a drink in each establishment. A tip: don't forget how many pintxos you've eaten. You'll be asked at the end.

the restaurants in Donostia/San Sebastian are one of the main attractions for the visitors who come to our city.

We are a worldwide culinary benchmark, with a culture closely tied to our land, our scenery, our festivals, our people. But we do not keep this knowledge to ourselves. At the Basque Culinary Center we teach advanced studies to future professionals from all over the world and we also give cooking classes to anyone who wants to learn and have fun with the secrets of our culinary culture.

any time of the year is perfect for enjoying the unique experience of dining in a cider house. It's sure to leave a good taste in your mouth.

the cider ritual

We've been making cider here for centuries and it is obtained from the fermented apple juice, using traditional methods. From the middle of January to the end of April, the txotx ritual brings Basques to the cider houses, where they can taste the season's cider before it is bottled, along with traditional menus based on cod and T-bone steak. The cider houses are open throughout the year and they are restaurants that are normally located in the same farm buildings where the cider is produced, surrounded by apple orchards. In some places they still uphold the tradition of standing as you eat and wrapping up warm to protect yourself from the cold of the cellar. But there are also modern cider houses with heating, where people sit at long wooden tables which they share with the other regulars. There's a very special atmosphere.

In Hermani and Astigarraga, just ten kilometres from San Sebastian, is home to close to 50 cider houses. And the highly recommended Cider Museum, Sagardoetxea, is also located in Astigarraga.

cider house menu

Based on cod omelette, T-bone steak, nuts, cheese and quince jam. And all of the cider that you want, of course.

the txotx ritual

txotx! This magical word is more than a tradition, it has become a ritual that takes place between January and the middle of May.

- The owner of the cider house shouts 'txotx!', inviting everyone to try the cider from a new barrel.
- The diners rise from the table and approach him with their empty glass. In the order in which they arrive, each person tilts their glass until the cider, which comes out of a tiny hole in the barrel, 'breaks' in the glass and its aromas are released.
- You stand next to the barrel as you savour the different subtle flavours of the cider and share your thoughts with everyone else. You then return to the table with the empty glass.
- This is repeated again and again until all barrels have been tried.

30 years ago, txakoli was considered a vulgar drink, acidic, uninteresting. But now it is one of the great ambassadors of our cuisine. A white wine, sophisticated, with irresistible freshness which dazzles the most demanding of diners. A tour of the wineries of Zarautz, Getaria, Aia, Orío and Hondarrribia, the towns in Gipuzkoa that produce the most txakoli, will reveal the secrets of this young and fruity wine, a perfect accompaniment for salted anchovies or tuna in oil. You will also enjoy a delightfully pretty view of the coastal scenery on this tour, anticipating the pleasure of the txakoli that you will be able to taste as soon as you arrive.

in San Sebastian we've managed to preserve the essence of traditional trade. In fact, a big part of the success of our cuisine is down to the seasonal produce that the area's smallholder farmers and cattle farmers bring to the city throughout the year. Just like they used to decades ago.

In La Bretxa and San Martín food markets you can see the most renowned chefs personally selecting the best ingredients. They come here every day to select the meat, vegetables and fish which they will go on to serve in their restaurants. The Palacio del Mar (Sea Palace) or Aquarium is one of the most modern in Europe. The building, the work of the architect Juan Carlos Guerra, stands on a rock and has just undergone extensive renovations to give it more of an educational focus. It has an oceanarium that is crossed by a 360° acrylic tunnel, where the visitors feel like they are a part of the marine life as they watch sharks and rays pass over them. Over 200 marine species live in the numerous tanks that the museum has, including a touch tank aquarium where you can touch living specimens.

Hondalea

Excavated in the empty lighthouse building on the Island of Santa Clara, Hondalea ("marine abyss" in Basque) by Cristina Iglesias is an overwhelming sculptural landscape that draws you in with that irresistible force that the untamed sea has when you look down on it from the vantage point of a cliff. Access to the sculpture is by boat from the port. This journey to the island by boat and looking at the rocks and waves from the paths leading to the lighthouse is also part of seeing the installation. The sculpture, extraordinarily dynamic and symbolic, is sculpted by melted geological strata and the water of the Bay of Biscay flows through them according to the tides and waves that surround the island.

complete works

Donostia / San Sebastian

The architecture in Donostia/San Sebastian includes works of many styles but unquestionable quality. The Belle Époque left an impressive legacy of elegant aristocratic buildings, with a prominent French-influenced style. But there are many more: fine examples of rationalism, prestigious contemporary works and splendid bridges and palaces all make up a complete selection that is well worth visiting.

Belle Époque romantic area

In 1893, Queen María Cristina started spending her summers in the city, and she was joined by much of the European aristocracy. This brought San Sebastian fortune, distinction and an impressive series of stately buildings with a marked French style. The City Hall (1) that was a casino from when it was built in 1887 until 1924. The Victoria Eugenia Theatre (2), from 1912, of sandstone and decorated in the Plateresque style. And the splendid María Cristina Hotel (3), work of the architect Charles Mewes, who was also responsible for the Ritz hotels in Madrid and Paris, all splendid examples from that golden era.

Other examples from that period are the Provincial Council Palace (4), in Gipuzkoa Square, the Koldo Mitxelena Cultural Centre (5) the Perla Spa (6) built in 1912 and considered one of the most beautiful from the period, and the Funicular Station (7)

La Perla Spa, on La Concha Beach (6). You can now enjoy its thalassotherapy.

contemporary work

San Sebastian has excellent examples of contemporary architecture. For example, the Kursaal's two "beached rocks" (8), by Rafael Moneo, awarded with the Mies van der Rohe award for architecture. He was also responsible for the Iesu Church (9). Or there's also the Basque Culinary Center (10), the centre for Higher Gastronomical Studies, with the appearance of stacked dishes. And the Higher School of Music, Musikene (11), opened in 2016 and inspired by a grand piano.

Zurriola Bridge (14), which connects the Boulevard to the Kursaal.

An intriguing blend of architectural styles awaits you on the banks of the River Urumea: ranging from baroque and more traditional styles to a demonstration of the simplicity of minimalism.

The Zurriola Bridge (14), the nearest to the sea, was built in 1921 and is famous for its fabulous art deco lamp posts. the Santa Catalina Bridge (15) was the first to be built in the city, using wood. And the María Cristina Bridge (16) dates from 1905 and features four monumental obelisks.

converted into museums

Among other things, Donostia/San Sebastian's ongoing devotion to culture has led to the architectural conversion of old buildings. This is the case of the Tabakalera (17), the former tobacco factory which was converted into what is now an International Centre for Contemporary Culture whose interior and terrace with a panoramic view are worth a visit. And San Telmo Museum (18), a Dominican convent from the 16th century that has been renovated and extended with a modern building.

In San Sebastian, there are outstanding examples of this style, typical of the 1920s and 1930s. The Club Náutico (12) (Yacht Club) is one of the most striking: a boat moored in the dock, built in 1929 by the architects José Manuel Aizpurua and Joaquín Labagen.

The Equitativa (13) building is another rationalist gem, in its expressionist form, in an exceptional setting at the entrance to the Gros district.

more than folklore: an identity go ahead and speak Europe's oldest language!

What lies behind the city's most deep-rooted customs? The Tamborrada (a festival in which the city is filled with people dressed as soldiers and cooks playing drums), the traineras (traditional rowing competition), the Euskal Jaiak (Basque Festivals) or the St. Thomas Fair? An ancient language, Basque, and a unique culture come together to form a nation with strong emotional ties. A true identity.

The Basque culture is unique. It has its own language, Basque, the oldest tongue in Europe. And it has traditional values that have been preserved, such as sacrifice, a bond with the land, solidarity and respect for traditions. Its language and its distinctive values have given rise to a unique collective identity and many of the folkloric expressions and sports exhibitions that you can enjoy in San Sebastian.

From the Tamborrada to the St. Thomas Fair, from the carnival to the Herri Kirolak (Basque rural sports event) or San Sebastian's La Concha Flag (a sailing competition), sporting competitions that originate from old rivalries between farm workers and fishermen, this city's local festivals will reveal another side to the true nature of the Basques.

→ January San Sebastian Day

Can you imagine an entire city with thousands of Napoleonic soldiers and cooks enthusiastically playing the drums for 24 hours straight? It's the Tamborrada, which is held in honour of the city's patron saint on the 20th of January. It starts at midnight, when the city's flag is raised in Constitución Square, to the march of San Sebastian. The celebration goes on for a whole day. You won't believe it until you see it.

→ February Carnival

The month of February sees the arrival of the Carnival. It is announced by the boisterous caldereros (tinkers) who, as the popular song goes, "come from Hungary". On the Sunday after caldereros Saturday, Iñudeak eta Artzaik day is held, re-enacting the courtship between the nursemaids and shepherds when they came down to the town. Both events are accompanied by the melodies of Raimundo Sarrigi and come before the Carnival which, when the god Momus appears, fills the streets with a colourful frenzy.

→ August Big Week

This is San Sebastian's biggest festival, held in honour of the feast of Our Lady of Assumption throughout the week that includes the 15th of August. It offers an extensive programme of concerts and cultural events with one star show: the International Fireworks Competition.

→ September La Concha Flag

On the first two Sundays in September, the city is flooded with rowing fans who come from fishing villages from all over the Cantabrian and they fill the area around the port and the foothills of Mount Urgull with wonderful colour. The occasion merits it: it's La Concha Flag, the top boat racing trophy. The Olympics of rowing.

→ September Euskal Jaiak (Basque Festivals)

In September it's time to celebrate the Euskal Jaiak which, with its extensive festival programme of rural sports and traditional dances, immerses the city in a huge popular celebration of the Basque culture.

→ December St. Thomas Fair

This is held on the 21st of December and it is one of the most eagerly-awaited fairs by the people of San Sebastian. It commemorates the old market that used to be held in San Sebastian, where farmers and cattle ranchers from the province would come to the capital city to pay their taxes and display their best produce.

festival of festivals

Film, theatre and music festivals that attract the world's best artists and thousands of people throughout the year. When it comes to cultural events, San Sebastian is a real festival.

public favourites

JAZZALDIA INTERNATIONAL JAZZ FESTIVAL

During the second fortnight in July, San Sebastian moves to the beat of the finest international jazz. Music greats like James Brown, Liza Minnelli, Bobby McFerrin, Diana Krall, Cassandra Wilson and B.B. King have come to the city's beaches, theatres, squares and auditoriums to thrill their audiences.

MUSIC FORTNIGHT

In August, the large crowds at the Music Fortnight show you how much the people of San Sebastian love symphonic music. Concerts by internationally renowned figures and orchestras attract young and old people alike, and the "sold out" sign is almost always on show.

INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

Film events in Europe. The city's biggest cultural event. The festival of festivals. Major stars and young directors. Every September the whole domestic and international movie scene comes to San Sebastian to attend the most cosmopolitan event of the year.

aquatic activities

There is only one sea in San Sebastian, but it behaves in very different ways.

In the east, on Zurriola Beach, it is an indomitable sea, with constant waves that are enjoyed by lovers of surfing. However, on La Concha, the bay protects its waters so that you can paddle a canoe or go stand-up paddle boarding or, if you prefer, enjoy the views of the city from a calm and swaying sea.

And if sailing, scuba diving or open water swimming are your thing, the most suitable water is also here. Whatever you like, be it the rough, stop-start sport of surfing or the sustained exercise of rowing, you have the perfect sea to do it in San Sebastian.

paddle surf

walking on water

This sport is like walking on water. It involves rowing as you stand on a large surf-style board. It's become popular across the world. For example, it allows you to go on a pleasant journey across the whole of La Concha Bay, watching the bustle of the city from your own craft.

In any event, it's one of the most complete sports around, suitable for everyone. At the Fortuna Club you can hire equipment throughout the year and they teach basic courses. And if you prefer to be seated when you sail, they'll also rent you a canoe.

the Basque Country; a cyclists' paradise.

The San Sebastian area is the perfect setting for cycling. Very nearby there are epic ports from the Tour de France, beautiful routes along the coast for people of all levels, mountain biking trails and legendary routes along the roads of the Basque countryside, climbs and descents that have tested cycling greats like Olano, Lejarreta and Beloki.

Kili provides customised cycling plans, for individuals or groups, guided road, mountain biking or urban cycling tours, designed for you to get on your bike and discover the best parts of the Basque Country. They also rent bicycles.

3. running

do you like running?

San Sebastian is a perfect destination for running. It's very popular here and the city has endless promenades on the seafront and countless pedestrianised streets which make up a number of established routes. Two of the most popular routes are completely flat: the three-beach route, which covers six kilometres along the city's coastline from point to point, without crossing a single traffic light. And the River Urumea route, which you can enjoy on either of its banks, along tree-lined avenues and across all of the city's bridges: around seven kilometres in total.

This city also hosts major events on the athletics calendar, with races such as the Marathon, the Half-Marathon, the 15km Classic and the Behobia-San Sebastian, one of the most popular races with almost 30,000 runners.

And what about cycling? With a 30 kilometre network of bidegorris (bicycle lanes) worthy of Holland and with the "San Sebastian-San Sebastian Classic", a cycling race, which attracts the world's best cyclists every summer.

Everything else begins beyond San Sebastian. Nearby start other paths that are impossible to forget, because they offer delightful visual rewards and exhilarating spots that are highly representative of Basque history and landscape: the secret memory of the cliffs, the echo of the old beech forests, the old roads of the Way of St. James One-day or one-week trips. For you or for your group. Bring a backpack and fill it with precious memories on your walk.

walks to the city's watchtowers

Igeldo

You can leave the city surprisingly quickly from Ondarreta beach. In just a few minutes, the trace of the city disappears and the landscape changes completely. To the north, you can go up the charming lighthouse road to the amusement park. And a little further south, you can follow the Way of St. James and enjoy an exceptional 14-kilometre walk along the seafront, between farmhouses and green fields, to the town of Orio.

Urgull

The history of the walls of San Sebastian is the history of the city itself, which has endured the attacks of a strategic enclave over the centuries. Most of these walls and their evocative power survive on Mount Urgull, a haven for families, hikers, couples and athletes, a hanging garden, a magnificent vantage point overlooking the city. Endless paths wind their way up to La Mota castle on the summit, the only place overlooking the city's three beaches.

Ulía

From the eastern edge of the city, above the cliff that marks the end of Zurriola beach, several paths lead off into Mount Ulía, a quiet, charming mountain with coastal slopes and coniferous forests. On the path to Pasaia, 12 kilometres away, you can find ruined forts, cannon platforms and an old shooting range that has been transformed into a picnic area.

The main attraction of San Sebastian is to allow yourself to be swept along with the rhythm of the city. To stroll around. To enjoy each step, the harmony that pervades the streets and buildings, the style and elegance of its shop windows, to admire its changing landscape and splendid natural surroundings. Calmly. Leisurely. At your own pace.

walks between the sea and the architecture

For six kilometres, the city runs alongside the beautiful coastline of the Cantabrian Sea and we can follow it along the promenades of La Concha, Zurriola, Ondarreta and Paseo Nuevo. And when we head further inside the city, the various architectural styles (with their romantic, modernist and rationalist buildings and recent contemporary works) and the pleasant urban design of its streets and neighbourhoods reveal little treasures on every corner.

The Thalasso-Sports Centre is the direct descendent of the first seawater spa opened when the "Belle Époque" was in full flow in San Sebastian. It offers all of the wellness, relaxation and physical toning of seawater in a 5500m² facility. There are relaxation and hydrotherapy pools, a panoramic jacuzzi, a dry sauna, an ice fountain and a whole maze of sensations. All of the therapeutic effects of seawater. the mount of San Sebastian and the rollercoaster

An amusement park from the start of the 20th century sits on top of Mount Igeldo. It still has its "Belle Époque" charm, with its ponies, its lookouts and its retro feel, so when you go up there you travel back in time. Its rides have such evocative names as the Río Misterioso (Mysterious River), the Casa del Terror (House of Horror) and the Montaña Suiza (Rollercoaster), whose train carries its brave passengers around the very edge of the cliff at dazzling speeds. It has the most famous panoramic view of San Sebastian; the most widely-painted and iconic view. So you can enjoy the city with one eye and keep the other one on your kids.

The moon is out. The stars are out.
So why not go out too? Wander around the Old Town, the Gros district and Reyes Católicos Street.
The night has only just begun.

night plans

DON'T GO TO SLEEP YET

If it might be a relaxed evening of conversations that you'll never forget, or it might be wild and crazy night, where things happen so quickly that you can hardly remember anything. You can have the night that you decide. Or the night may decide for you.

in San Sebastian the nights are varied, changeable, personal.

Everyone has their own night out here. The one they want, the one they're looking for. It's a night surrounded by the sea, which cools the temperature, means that everyone has a different experience and gives it a unique style. For example: you leave a bar on the Boulevard and cross the river to go to another on Zurriola. The city lights are reflected in the water. You hear the waves passing beneath the bridge. You can smell the dark sea. There's nothing else like it.

There are basically five leisure areas. The Old Town, a lively and diverse selection of bars and pubs. Reyes Católicos, at the back of Buen Pastor Cathedral, the chic area of town, with trendy bars and alternative music. Egia, with micro-theatre and live music. And the Gros district, young and alternative, with bars that are scattered about but with unique styles, ideal for sitting down and slowly enjoying a cool drink and the Antiguo area. The bars in these three areas close at three in the morning. But don't leave just yet, there's still more fun to be had.

The action continues in the port and on the Zurriola and La Concha beaches, with nightclubs on the seafront, as changing as the tides, where everything and anything can happen.

WHISKY AND WATER

Or beer and water, or gin and tonic and water. The nightlife and the calm of the sea: a fantastic combination that few cities can offer.

On the one hand, San Sebastian has managed to retain the essence of traditional shopping, with a wide variety of establishments that offer tried and tested products with the same quality as always. And at the same time, it has that chic and stylish touch that can be seen in its range of shops, with highly sophisticated stores, alternative establishments and big brand boutiques. And, as it's also not a very big city, the stores are concentrated in the same areas, so going shopping is very convenient.

The city's three main shopping areas:

The Old Town, with its traditional shops and typical souvenirs, but also with delicatessens and designer stores.

The Centre, with its small upmarket stores and the top international brands.

Gros district, a diverse selection of art galleries, antique shops, sports shops and surfer and mountain gear stores.

Stores are generally open from 10.00 to 13.30 and from 16.00 to 19.30. However, the shopping centres and supermarkets don't normally close at lunchtime and they are normally open until 21:00 or 22:00.

There are paths that start at San Sebastian and take you to places that are so unlike one another that it doesn't seem possible that they're so close to each other. Behind every valley we cross there's a change in scenery and architecture, there's a different Basque language and a microclimate of its own, so it's easy to believe that you're inside a maze. Here are some tips so you don't get lost in the surrounding areas. Or so that you do.

near Donostia

THE GATEWAY
TO THE MAZE

1. behind the green heart

Gipuzkoa's heart isn't red, it's green and winding: deep valleys, curved roads, villages built next to the rivers that cross the region in an inevitably ornate style. The inland has a wealth of curves, slopes and places that are well worth visiting. The N-1 that crosses the valley of the River Oria is the main road connecting the north and the south. You won't have to drive too far to reach Tolosa, a noble town that was the capital of Gipuzkoa for ten years in the 19th century. It would be an excellent idea to head to Tolosa one Saturday morning, when they hold the bustling traditional market for local produce.

Another unique market is in Ordizia, a few kilometres to the south. They've been holding its market for five centuries in the very heart of the old town, which has been declared a Historic-Artistic Site. Every Wednesday you get the chance to experience one of the more traditional aspects of the Basque way of life. We're now in the Basque Highlands, where nature, culture and cuisine come together to form an enticing tourist attraction.

mount Txindoki is the basque version of the Matterhorn

Goierrri is overlooked by the always magical Aralar Mountains which are dominated by the Txindoki Peak, a symbol of the Basque mountains and landscape; our very own Matterhorn. To the south of the territory, there is another mountain range, Aizkorri (see photo). Zegama is one of its entrances, and it is here where the famous mountain marathon starts and ends.

If you go a little further up the Oria River, you will arrive at Beasain, where you can visit the 12th century medieval site: the mill, the wine press and the splendid stone and wooden structure of the palace. And very close by, in Ataua, you can visit the Barandiaran Museum, which is a Basque mythology museum.

There's not a great deal of distance from there to Idiazabal, which is famous for the designation of origin of its cheese. And you also have Segura very nearby, one of the region's most elegant and beautiful villages, which was founded in the thirteenth century. Its narrow cobblestone streets are unique in Gipuzkoa, as are the nearby Aizpea mines (in the town of Zerain), a unique cultural site where you can contemplate the impact that iron mining has had on the landscape, culture and Basque society since the 11th century. After passing through Mutiloa, you come to the town of Ormaiztegui, where you can visit the Zumalakarregi Museum. Located in the house where the Carlist general Tomás Zumalakarregi was born.

Basque coastal route

Heading east towards the border with France, Mount Ullia brings us down a signposted path to Pasaia San Pedro, a town with cobbled streets and a fishing tradition, which has a shipyard for traditional Basque boats called Alboala. In the port you can catch a boat to the neighbouring Pasaia Donibane, a village crossed by a single narrow street and dotted with passageways.

From there it's easy to get to the historic quarters that have been preserved in the industrial towns of Lezo and Errenteria. If you continue eastwards, Mount Jaizkibel takes you to Hondarribia and Irun, which was a major Roman settlement. Hondarribia is simply spectacular. Founded eight centuries ago, the upper part of the town has a real medieval feel, which is in contrast with the colourful fishing-village style of the lower district, the Marina.

To the east and west of San Sebastian, the coastline is an ever-shifting line of steep cliffs and beautiful beaches, an extraordinary collection of lighthouses, vantage points and little fishing villages.

Next to the border awaits the quiet Hendaye, famous for its beach, summer houses and Abbadie Castle. A few kilometres to the north stands the charming San Juan de Luz, which has a beautifully preserved historic centre and the splendid church of San Juan Bautista. Continuing along the coast, you come to Biarritz, a tourist destination for lots of high society figures.

Most of the finest scenery and most famous sandy beaches in the region of Gipuzkoa spread out to the west of San Sebastian. If you leave San Sebastian and head through Orrio, you'll come to Zarautz, the first real gem on the coastline, where they hold a top international surfing event. The next stop-off is Getaria, famous for its mouse-shaped peninsula, for being the birthplace of the explorer Juan Sebastián Elcano and the fashion designer Cristóbal Balenciaga and for having some of the finest grilled fish restaurants in the Basque Country.

The neighbouring Zumaia, standing at the mouth of the River Urola and surrounded by beaches, it has a world-famous geological treasure: the Flysch. The road from here to Deba is known for its hills and bends, but it's worth it, if only to see the summer houses, the charming beach or the marvellous cloister of Santa María Church. Mutriku is the final stronghold of Gipuzkoa before you enter Bizkaia, an exceptional amphitheatre with views of the Cantabrian Sea.

the Flysch, the bible of the earth

The Flysch is a curious formation of successive layers of rocks which, due to the continuous action of the sea, have been exposed and reveal information about biological, geological and even climatic changes that have occurred in the last 50 million years. It's an open book that reveals the deepest secrets of the earth. A genuine tectonic bible.

3. Urola Garaia

inland route

The upper basin of the River Urola is also known as the Iron Valley. The inexhaustible kinetic force of the river led to the emergence of its old ironworks and the subsequent thriving metallurgical industry. As you travel through this province you can observe the relationship between humankind and the earth and how iron transformed society in the Basque Country.

In Zumárraga you will find an architectural gem: The Antigua Hermitage, considered the Cathedral of Hermitages. Inside, an incredible timber frame supports the roof in such a way that it appears to be floating.

Mirandaola

And in Legazpi, the stunning spectacle of the Mirandaola Ironworks starts the journey through the Iron Valley: the Iron Museum, the Workers' Route and Chillida Lantokia, where the sculptor produced his most famous iron pieces.

OTA blue zone

A tao or ota zone is a blue zone where ground-level parking is allowed. you need to buy a ticket from one of the machines that allow you to park for between ninety minutes and nine hours, depending on the zone. when that time has passed, you have to move the car and buy another ticket.

Note: the zones painted white, bearing the letter b or r, are for residents.

Just like the car parks, the prices vary; the zones closest to the centre are more expensive (90 minutes = €2.87), and you must remember that this is the maximum stay time.

brief dictionary of the basque language

USE EUROPE'S OLDEST LANGUAGE TO ORDER A BEER. Basque is the oldest living language in Europe and one of the few non-Indo-European languages that has not only survived but is actually thriving in San Sebastian today. Half of the people in San Sebastian speak Basque. Join in and learn some expressions. Use our language to say hello or order a beer: "Egunon. Zurito bat, mesedez". (Good morning. A small glass of beer please).
